ST. ANNE'S MUSIC

For the Last Sunday after Pentecost, the Mass setting remains Mass XI with Credo I; from the First Sunday of Advent, the setting is Mass XVII with Credo III and the Marian Antiphon changes from the Salve Regina to Alma Redemptoris Mater. The Asperges Me will be sung as usual. On the Sundays of Advent, the Rorate Caeli is sung after the Offertorium, with all joining in the antiphon. Everyone is invited to join in all the sections in the booklets marked in bold.

ORGAN MUSIC IN ADVENT: From the First Sunday of Advent until Christmas (apart from the Third Sunday of Advent, Gaudete Sunday), in keeping with the character of the season, the liturgical use of the organ is restricted to accompanying the singing.

ST. ANNE'S CHOIR: The St Anne's Church Choir is looking for new members to join in its regular schedule of Sung Masses on Sundays and feast-days. Rehearsals are held 30 minutes before Mass. For more information, please email stannebelmont.music@gmail.com

Singing and Listening: The Ancient Practice of Alternation

Anyone who has followed the sections marked in bold in our booklets will have noticed that, in much of the Ordinary, the choir and the congregation take turns. The Kyrie passes back and forth between them, and the Gloria and Credo are shared verse by verse. This is not a modern arrangement for convenience. It is one of the oldest habits of liturgical song.

Archbishop Fulton Sheen once remarked that the Psalms "are common to Jews, Protestants, and Catholics." From the beginning, they were also sung by more than one voice. Isaiah heard the seraphim crying "one to another": Holy, holy, holy (Is 6:3). When the foundations of the second Temple were laid, the Levites "sang responsively" in praise of the Lord (Ezra 3:11), and Nehemiah set two great choirs to give thanks, answering one another on the walls of Jerusalem (Neh 12:31–40). Philo of Alexandria, a contemporary of Our Lord, describes a community of Jewish ascetics singing their hymns in two choirs, now together, now in answer.

The Church inherited this practice and made it her own. The historian Socrates records the tradition that St Ignatius of Antioch, having seen in a vision the angels praising the Holy Trinity in alternate choirs, taught his church to sing in the same way. St Basil describes his people dividing "into two parts" to chant the psalms, and St Augustine recalls how St Ambrose brought the custom to Milan. To this day, the Divine Office is sung by the two sides of the choir answering one another, verse by verse. In 1928, Pope Pius XI asked that the faithful once again "sing alternately with the clergy or the choir", and Mgr J. B. O'Connell's classic manual of the rubrics describes chanters who "sing parts alternately with the special choir or with the congregation."

Why alternate? Partly for the sake of the voice: no one can sing every verse of a long chant well. But there is more to it than that. Alternation gives each of us both a time to sing and a time to listen. While one side sings, the other hears the words and takes them in; then it answers, and the prayer moves forward, carried by both. Neither half is complete on its own. The choir does not sing in place of the people, nor the people in place of the choir. Each makes room for the other, and together they make one song.
